

Summary Proceeding: Purpose of Summary Proceeding Frustrated by Litigious Party

St. John's Law Review

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarship.law.stjohns.edu/lawreview>

Recommended Citation

St. John's Law Review (1972) "Summary Proceeding: Purpose of Summary Proceeding Frustrated by Litigious Party," St. John's Law Review: Vol. 46 : No. 4 , Article 39.

Available at: <https://scholarship.law.stjohns.edu/lawreview/vol46/iss4/39>

This Recent Development in New York Law is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at St. John's Law Scholarship Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in St. John's Law Review by an authorized editor of St. John's Law Scholarship Repository. For more information, please contact lasalar@stjohns.edu.

pality, having suffered the economic hardships resulting from both a public employee strike and mandatory litigation expenses, would see any contempt penalties ultimately imposed paid to the state.

Precisely this situation arose in Goodman v. State of New York.²⁶⁷ Plaintiff Goodman, as Clerk of the Supreme Court in New York County, became the holder of contempt fines resulting from proceedings instituted by the city against certain public employee unions.

Both the city and state claimed the funds, the former because they resulted from litigation which the city was required to initiate,²⁶⁸ the latter because the funds were punitive and not compensatory in nature. The court acknowledged that while the city was clearly the aggrieved party, the proceedings under which the fines were imposed were criminal and therefore the fines were not considered compensatory. But the court viewed the city as acting in a dual capacity, not only as the aggrieved party but also as the party statutorily compelled to institute the proceedings:

In this posture, with the local governmental body . . . mandated to the expenses of litigation and protection of the rights of its constituent public, it lies implicit in the statute [Judiciary Law § 751(2)] that fines collected thereunder belong to that governmental body responsible for enforcement of the statute.²⁶⁹

Though subject to criticism, the Taylor Law was at least designed to allow governmental operation to proceed unimpeded by public employee strikes or threats of strike. When those operations are impeded, the parties who primarily suffer are the governmental body against which the strike is called and its constituents. Under the facts in Goodman, it would clearly be inequitable to allow the state, which has suffered minimally in comparison to the city, to recover the penalties.

SUMMARY PROCEEDING

Summary proceeding: Purpose of summary proceeding frustrated by litigious party.

The fundamental purpose of summary judgment is to avoid the necessity of a trial.²⁷⁰ In the landlord-tenant area, the proceeding by which such judgment is obtained was "designed to provide the land-

²⁶⁷ 67 Misc. 2d 877, 325 N.Y.S.2d 680 (Sup. Ct. N.Y. County 1971).

²⁶⁸ See note 266 supra.

²⁶⁹ 67 Misc. 2d at 878, 325 N.Y.S.2d at 681.

²⁷⁰ Smyser, The Summary Judgment—Ascertainment of the Genuine Issue, 16 S.D.L. REV. 20 (1971).

lord with a simple, expeditious and inexpensive means of regaining possession of his premises for non-payment of rent."²⁷¹

Two such summary proceedings for non-payment and one hold-over summary proceeding were involved in Hotel Martha Washington Management Co. v. Swinick.²⁷² The defendant-tenant did not file an answer in any of these actions, but rather moved in a federal district court to divest the state court of its jurisdiction, alleging that she would be denied her constitutional rights in the civil court. In each instance the landlord filed a petition in the district court to secure an order remanding the proceedings to the civil court. Ultimately, the landlord's motions were granted.

On the day of trial, the tenant "made a demand for the appointment of counsel, leave to file a jury demand and for the issuance of subpoenas."²⁷³ In the two non-payment proceedings the court denied this request on the ground that the tenant had demonstrated that she was cognizant of the risks involved in not answering the complaints.²⁷⁴ The court declared that

[t]his is not a case where the failure to interpose an answer was the result of mistake, oversight or other inadvertent failure. On the contrary, it was with the knowledge that her time to file an answer was limited. . . .²⁷⁵

It therefore concluded that "she should bear the consequences of [her] course of action. . . ."²⁷⁶

In the holdover proceeding, which was "based on the claim that the tenant's term had expired and on the further claim that her conduct [was] objectionable. . . ,"²⁷⁷ the court denied the tenant's application for counsel, jury and subpoenas only in relation to her affirmative defenses and counterclaims, which the court deemed unassertable. The fact that the tenant failed to file an answer did not, however, shift

²⁷¹ Emray Realty Corp. v. Jackson, 12 Misc. 2d 62, 174 N.Y.S.2d 618 (App. T. 1st Dep't 1958).

²⁷² 67 Misc. 2d 390, 324 N.Y.S.2d 687 (N.Y.C. Civ. Ct. N.Y. County 1971).

²⁷³ Id. at 394, 324 N.Y.S.2d at 692.

²⁷⁴ In the tenant's second petition to the federal court to divest the state court of jurisdiction, she stated:

I am due in Civil Court of the County of New York . . . pursuant to the notice of petition and petition in that I must put in an answer within five (5) days after service upon me.

Id.

²⁷⁵ Id. at 395, 324 N.Y.S.2d at 693.

²⁷⁶ Id. at 396, 324 N.Y.S.2d at 694; see Gooden v. Galashaw, 42 Misc. 2d 8, 247 N.Y.S.2d 186 (N.Y.C. Civ. Ct. N.Y. County 1964).

²⁷⁷ 67 Misc. 2d at 398, 324 N.Y.S.2d at 695.

the burden of proof from the landlord in establishing the truth of his claims. With respect to these issues the tenant was permitted a jury trial and the issuance of subpoenas. The court further observed that the legal aid society would represent the plaintiff if she were found eligible.²⁷⁸

As previously indicated, the primary purpose of a summary judgment is to save the time and expense ordinarily entailed in a trial. Its speed is its justification. Any attempt by a litigant to thwart this purpose should be seriously considered. The tenant in the case under consideration has continually frustrated attempts to obtain summary judgments. These tactics have consumed a substantial amount of judicial time and energy and have subjected the courts and judges to much abuse. Since 1968 the tenant has instituted twenty-two actions naming as defendants "the Sheriff of New York City, the District Attorney of New York County, a judge of the Criminal Court, the Police Department, the Department of Social Welfare and the Criminal Court."²⁷⁹ The tenant claimed as justification that "she want[ed] security."²⁸⁰

The court recommended that an action be brought in the supreme court to ascertain whether the tenant should be punished for contempt and enjoined from bringing any action in the criminal court, civil court, or supreme court without authorization. No such action has yet been brought.

²⁷⁸ At the outset, the court noted that the tenant was relying upon Hotel Martha Washington Management Co. v. Swinick, 66 Misc. 2d 833, 322 N.Y.S.2d 139 (App. T. 1st Dep't 1971), discussed in The Quarterly Survey, 46 ST. JOHN'S L. REV. 355, 368 (1971). The appellate term therein reversed the civil court and allowed the tenant "'to defend . . . as a poor person, without liability for the payment of jury fees and with leave to apply to the Court below for issuance of subpoenas and the appointment of counsel.'" 67 Misc. 2d at 391, 324 N.Y.S.2d at 689, quoting Hotel Martha Washington Management Co. v. Swinick, 66 Misc. 2d 833, 322 N.Y.S.2d 139 (App. T. 1st Dep't 1971).

²⁷⁹ 67 Misc. 2d at 406, 324 N.Y.S.2d at 703.

²⁸⁰ Id. at 410, 324 N.Y.S.2d at 707.