CPLR 4103: Untimely Demand Results in Waiver

St. John's Law Review

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarship.law.stjohns.edu/lawreview

Recommended Citation

This Recent Development in New York Law is brought to you for free and open access by the Journals at St. John's Law Scholarship Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in St. John's Law Review by an authorized editor of St. John's Law Scholarship Repository. For more information, please contact lasalar@stjohns.edu.
destitution is plaintiff's ground for a preference, it must be shown that defendant's negligence was the cause of plaintiff's destitution.\textsuperscript{118}

In a recent case, \textit{Tintner v. Marangi},\textsuperscript{119} plaintiff, 72 years of age, had made two prior motions for a trial preference but was unable to make a showing of "destitution" or to comply with the "stringent provisions of the rules of the Appellate Division." In the instant action, plaintiff based his motion on a change of circumstances, \textit{i.e.}, due to the loss of a part-time job because of superannuation he was forced to share a small bedroom with his wife and two grandchildren in his son’s home. In sustaining plaintiff’s motion on the ground of changed circumstances and in the interests of justice, the court explicitly added a new criterion to be considered in determining whether a special trial preference should be granted:

if a litigant's resources are inadequate to permit living in dignity and self-respect—commensurate with age and prior milieu—it is both just and meet that we grant a special trial preference.\textsuperscript{120}

It was a change in plaintiff’s circumstances that entitled him to a trial preference here. It should be noted that had plaintiff and his wife been sharing a small bedroom with their grandchildren prior to the superannuation, it is perhaps doubtful that this motion would have been granted.

\textbf{ARTICLE 41—TRIAL BY A JURY}

\textbf{CPLR 4103: Untimely demand results in waiver.}

CPLR 4103 provides that, when it appears during the course of a non-jury trial\textsuperscript{121} that the relief required, although not originally demanded, entitles the adverse party to a trial by jury, the court must give such party an opportunity to demand a jury trial.\textsuperscript{122} However, an untimely demand results in a waiver.

In \textit{Northern Operating Corp. v. Anopol},\textsuperscript{123} the appellate division, second department, dismissed defendant’s appeal from an order denying a motion for a jury trial. Although the court held

\textsuperscript{119} 57 Misc. 2d 318, 292 N.Y.S.2d 779 (Sup. Ct. Rockland County 1968).
\textsuperscript{120} Id. at 320, 292 N.Y.S.2d at 780-81.
\textsuperscript{121} When it is apparent before trial that there exists a legal issue, triable by jury, CPLR 4102 is applicable.
\textsuperscript{122} For the rationale behind this provision, see 4 WEINSTEIN, KORN & MILLER, NEW YORK CIVIL PRACTICE \[4103.01\] (1965) and \textit{The Biannual Survey of New York Practice}, 40 ST. JOHN'S L. REV. 122, 166-67 (1965).
\textsuperscript{123} 30 App. Div. 2d 690, 291 N.Y.S.2d 831 (2d Dep't 1968).
that no appeal lies from an order made on a ruling given during the course of trial, it proceeded to discuss the case as if the merits were before it.

Plaintiff sued for specific performance of a contract for the sale of real property and for damages. At the close of plaintiff's main case, subject to the calling of an additional witness, defendant moved to dismiss. Plaintiff then indicated that he would pursue only the cause for damages. The trial court did not dismiss the first cause and defendant proceeded with his case. During examination of his first witness defendant moved for a jury trial of the second cause. The court ruled that this was not a timely motion within the meaning of 4103.

An appeal provides one of the first illustrations of what will be deemed a waiver under 4103.

CPLR 4111: Jury may impeach its own verdict in respect to misconduct outside jury room.

At common law it was settled that jurors could not by affidavit impeach their own verdict, even if misconduct outside of the jury room was involved. A recent case, Bainton v. The Board of Education of the City of New York, illustrates that the common-law rule has been eroded. In Bainton, a personal injury action, two jurors made separate and unauthorized visits to the scene of the accident. The court held that this highly improper conduct was so inherently prejudicial as to require a new trial.

The court relied heavily upon the Court of Appeal's decision in People v. DeLucia which was decided in light of the United States Supreme Court's decision in Parker v. Gladden. In DeLucia, the Court of Appeals stressed that the purpose of the common-law rule was to prevent juror harassment but reasoned that the sixth amendment right to a trial by a fair and impartial jury must be counterbalanced against the older rationale. The result of the misconduct in DeLucia, (i.e., several jurors visited the scene of the crime and re-enacted it), was that these jurors became, in reality, unsworn witnesses against the defendants in violation of the sixth amendment.

Since the court in the instant case deemed the visit in and of itself to be inherently prejudicial, it is arguable that several older 124 See 10 Carmody-Wait 2d, Cyclopedia of New York Practice §§70:37, 70:38.

125 Actually, it appeared unlikely that defendant had such right anyway for the major thrust of the case was in equity. See 4 Weinstein, Korn & Miller, New York Civil Practice ¶4101.37 (1965).