LETTERS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

To the Editor:

....

Your symposium on the Durham rule was excellent. These questions are of particular interest to me as an attorney and as an editor of The Pope Speaks. The late Holy Father, you know, had a great deal to say on the subject of criminal responsibility. So far as I know, no one has studied the relevance of his remarks to the Durham question. It would be a worthwhile project.

Martin F. Connor
Managing Editor
The Pope Speaks

NEW YORK, N. Y.

To the Editor:

I recently received the Winter 1959 issue of your magazine and was very pleased with the splendid articles. Since this was the beginning of my subscription I wish to take advantage of your offer to forward Part I of the Symposium in the Autumn 1958 issue.

If it would be at all possible I would also appreciate it if you would inform me as to which "two national magazines" are preparing articles on this subject so that I will be certain to obtain copies.

A. John Robertson, Jr.

The March 23, 1959 issue of Newsweek contains a short article on the subject. The Life article is in the draft stage.

TOLEDO, OHIO

To the Editor:

It may seem strange that a physician would subscribe to a magazine designed primarily for lawyers. However, I have been in medicine as a man and boy since 1911 during which time the not too well oriented psychiatric assumptions of Freud and Adler brought about a period of sensationalism in the handling of criminals. . . .

The modern attempt to do away with morality and to depend upon unfounded assumptions, loud voiced assertions, and didactic opinions, eventually has to receive a calm survey by wisdom based upon accurate knowledge.

Shall try to interest some lawyers locally in the quarterly magazine.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J.

To the Editor:

I am a member of the State Commission on Mental Health that is proposing revisions of laws affecting mentally ill and retarded persons in the State of New Jersey, and I am desirous of obtaining a copy of your Part I article on Mental Disease and Criminal Responsibility. I have your Part II issue. I believe your Part I was issued in 1958. I am sending you my check in blank to cover your charges.

To the Editor:

At Christmas time we gave 24 subscriptions to THE CATHOLIC LAWYER to local attorneys.

....

Please advise us how soon this will be sent, as your bill seemed to indicate a delay in starting this subscription. Also give us the publication dates so we know when to expect subsequent issues. Thank you.

Notice of gift subscriptions are sent to donees immediately. Our usual publication months are February, May, August and November.

NEW YORK, N. Y.

To the Editor:

We have a request from Poland to obtain a copy of your publication containing six articles on "Delinquency" (July 1957).

We will be very happy to reimburse you for any costs involved.

BALTIMORE, MD.

To the Editor:

Enclosed is a copy of the complete list of addresses of the Saint Thomas More Society of Maryland. The list may be considered to have two parts, one (of 101 names) representative of the active members; the other comprising known Catholic members of the Bar and a few non-Catholic members who have expressed interest in our work.

In submitting [this list], I was motivated in part by the excellent edition of THE CATHOLIC LAWYER just received. The article treating of situation ethics was well done and is indicative of the type of material I believe should be part of every lawyer's reading diet. If spare copies of this edition are available, would it be possible for you to send one to each member on our mailing list with your invitation to subscribe? The present publication is so much in point, I believe it would substantially affect the number of returns.

To the Editor:

I have decided to have bound the various issues of THE CATHOLIC LAWYER in separate volumes. I find that your splendid magazine is a good reference book. . . .
